The beauty of the scenery here defies description, I ought to be a poet to do justice to it.
I am gazing at the sun shine this bright our shade effects enrapture. I am drawing a few the whole morning every day, my drawing is a little improving I believe.

The only thing which gives me a bit of worry is that life is not at all as inexpensive as I thought it would be. Everything is pricier than the poor little English, American travellers pocket.
There are very few people yet but they say after X mas the season begins. We don't mind the people over much, I hope that the hotel will raise the prices.

I can imagine all gradually getting together in your nice home over the festive decoration they make very pretty that time over I do hope that you should all be in good health and be thoroughly happy en famille. I hope your sister in law is improving in health, the baby very poorly, I am so sorry dear old Pier I can feeling for my heartfelt X mas greetings and I am sorry not to be able to send a little X mas present, but there is nothing here in this small place for you and some rubbish I don't want to send. I do hope you and me dear, this our whole to come Than
