

29th June, 1933.

Forgive me for my very delayed reply to your last postcard which you sent me.

I am so glad to hear that you are in touch with Nelky, he is a very delightful man.

Since you wrote to me my exhibition has been opened, and altogether has been very successful. I only wish you could see the collection of my works, but I shall be sending you a magazine with some of the pictures reproduced and described. I am sending you herewith a catalogue, which will show you the number and names of the pictures which are included.

Life is very strenuous here, especially this summer with so many foreigners in London for the World Economic Conference, and we are all very tired and need a rest.

Paul and his wife have returned from their honeymoon, and are busy arranging their new home. They have a lovely little house, and tonight we are going to our first dinner there, and are much looking forward to it.

My wife is leaving next week for the country, the place we have taken is just an hour from here. I shall stay on here, probably for the whole summer, as I wish to do a lot of work in my studio, but I will go down there for long weekends.

29th June, 1933.

Forgive my very delayed reply to your last postcard which you sent me.